Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

We have been criticised for referring to communists as "red rats." There is a more dignified word for them, said the critic. True, there is. But they who use the word so often to voice their own disapproval of upstanding Americans who refuse to conform to the gag rules of the organizations which they have taken over, will perhaps understand that word sooner than another. These rodents have taken shelter in our democracy from the tortures, imprisonment and sudden death, which the communazes of Europe visit upon the subversive! These burrowers and gnawers, these germ-laden and flea-bitten sappers of the national integrity, make a citadel of the Constitution of the United States! How shall they be halted except by driving them into the daylight, except by holding them up to public execration and contempt?

But we do feel that the tide is turning against these wretched ingrates. The fact that it might have been turned sooner, if the President had so desired, or even if the power-drunk labor leaders had been literate enough to read the handwriting on the wall, is all water that has gone over the wheel. When two of the national CIO leaders turn on their red cohorts, drum them out of the labor camp, brand them with the red "C" of communism, we know that those labor leaders are scared by the storm that they themselves invoked when they called all subversives to march under the CIO banner. The CIO is now readly to burn the bridge it crossed over on. Red Esau is condemned to wander in the wilderness again.

This upheaval in the ranks of labor itself, we believe marks the turning point, at least, in our defense preparations, and, it may be, in the building of the labor structure. A "new order" for labor, in which "common honesty" will again becom a motivating force, is perhaps rising over the horizon. In this new order which really is the old fundamental order of civilization, labor unions shall perhaps become legal entities, responsible for damage done to innocent third parties, governed by the same laws that govern corporations and individuals, constrained to keep their contracts even as the rest of us must keep our contracts.

In this new order for labor organizations, the membership will, perhaps, resume control of their unions by those democratic processes which govern their country. Usurpation of authority, abuse of power, and dominance of seditious and destructive philosophies, cannot be checked except by the constant vigilance of an alert and intelligent membership. This is, of course, true in the larger fied of national and local politics.

It may be that we read too much into this purge which the CIO leaders are attempting to make. When we noted Red Harry Bridges and the unspeakable waterfront thug, Curran, at the head of the CIO purge list our enthusiasm welled high. The old world is righting itself again, we thought. Under the pressure of public opinion expressed by thousands of newspapers and, to some extent by the sterilized radio, patriotism is winning against the class bitterness which the President for eight years, has so industriously fostered.

It is too early to tell whether the Frankenstein created by the New Deal will destroy it, or whether in the stern necessities of war, the New Deal will destroy its Frankenstein. But surely there is hope that the thinking people of this nation will instinctively return to the principles that made this nation the most humane and progressive, richest and the most powerful on the planet. For this is a nation in which those who labor with skilled hands own more automobiles, eat better and more food, own more and better homes, than all the rest of the world's workers combined.

Drive Starts For Kindergarten

Nevada City proponents of a kindergarten for children between the ages of four and one-half years and six years today began the circulating of a petition requesting the Nevada City Unified School district establish such a school.

Mrs. Charles Everhart is the leader in the movement to establish a kindergarten. She points out that such a grade in the school is "beneficial to the proper physical, mental and moral development of the children."

Besides circulating the petition among parents, the kindergarten proponent have left petitions at various places in the business district for the convenience of parents whom the will be unable to contact and who desire the establishment of the school. Such a petition is available at The Nugget office.

The petition reads:

"We, the undersigned, are residents of the Nevada City Unified School District and have children between the ages of four and one-half years and six years and desire that facilities be placed within the Nevada City Unified School District to enable the children to attend kindergarten. There being no facilities for kindergarten at the present time and it being our earnest opinion that such a grade in the school is beneficial to the proper physical, mental and moral development of the children, we urgently request that the member of the Board of Education for the Nevada City Unified School District establish a kindergarten in connection with the Nevada City Elemtary School."

Spends Weekend Here—

Leonard (Pop) Johnson, former local resident, now employed at Mare Island, spent the weekend in Nevada City. He was accompanied by his fiance, Miss Kathryn Soule, San Francisco private secretary. The Johnson-Soule marriage is scheduled to take place during the next weekend in Reno.

THURSDAY SET AS SWIM POOL OPENING DATE

Nevada City youngsters who have been anxiously awaiting the opening of the swimming pool will have to wait until Thursday before they can take theif first plunge of the year.

The lifeguard problem was solved by the city council last Thursday night with the appointment of Ronald Garwood but because of the necessity of making quite a few repairs at the pool and because of the unsettled weather there appeared no likelihood of the pool opening before Thursday.

The appointment of Garwood by the council followed lengthy consideration. Other applicants for the position were Donald Bosworth, William F. Pohley, Wilfred Joyal, Floyd Ruth and Elmo Williams.

Garwood stated in his application he has had previous experience in cleaning the pool and had passed life-saving tests. He will be assisted in the management of the pool and in the handling of the concession by his mother, Mrs. Clyde Garwood, who has had previous experience in that line of work.

Garwood will receive $100 per month in addition to the money derived from the concessions.

Hampton Lashbaugh and Verle Gray of this city were Downieville visitors today.

Work Expected To Start July 1 On N.C. Airport

Financial obstacles in the path of the Nevada City Airport improvement were cleared when the city council at its meeting last Thursday night appropriated $2,000 for the project.

Guerdon Ellis, president of the local chamber of commerce and supervisor of the Tahoe National Forest, said an agreement between the forest service, which has agreed to supervise the work and to provide the machinery for the job, and the city will probably be drawn up within the next week or ten days.

Ellis said it is hoped work on the airport will start by July 1st, even though equipment for the project may be difficult to get. Routine road maintenance work and the loaning of equipment fo defense purposes has resulted in a shortage of machinery for such a project.

It is proposed to eliminate a "hump" in the middle of the airport and improve the run-ways, thereby making the local airfield meet governmental requirements.

Dwight Steeles To Make Future Home In Oakland

Attorney and Mrs. Dwight Steele left Nevada City during the weekend to make their future home in Oakland, where Steele will be connected with a law firm.

The departure of the popular couple causes extreme regret in this city, where they have both been active in social and civic life.

Steele was a director of the local chamber of commerce and took an active interest in every event sponsored by that body. He also served as a scoutmaster and was president of the Nevada City Ski Club.

A CALIFORNIA SAGA

Not all the story of California's sweeping advance from its early day pastoral era of rangelands, wheatfields and orchard groves to a hustling industrial giant can be told in the matter of fact language of numbers.

But in the most comprehensive survey ever made by California's Bureau of Labor Statistics, which has just been published, there emerges a record of progress which seems to show that the Golden West as a fabulous land of opportunity and lusty growth was by no means just a sentimental legend. But the most striking fact revealed in California's history since 1890 has been its transformation into a state of major industrial importance.

In the last 50 years, California's total labor force increased 442 per cent compared to 127 per cent for the whole country. The growth of new industries and manufacturing, particularly since 1920, went hand in hand with the expansion of California's financial resources, the development of a sound statewide branch banking system second to none, circulating funds continuously through the state to meet the requirements of business and industry in any locality. What this contributed to the state's financial stability can be gauged from the fact that during the hectic period between 1920 and 1933 we had among the fewest bank failures of any state in the Union.

This has not been the only point on which California has surpassed her sister states. During 1939 this state led all others in rate of increase of wage earners employed in manufacturing industries, representing a gain of 132 per cent over 1914 as compared with an increase of less than 25 per cent in such employment for the nation as a whole in 1939.

Nor is the story yet done. Under the spur of all out defense, California's tomorrow is certain to record even greater chapters in her growth.—Contributed.

The bureau of standards has a thermometer which will give accurate readings as low as 259 degrees C below zero, or within four degrees of absolute zero. With this instrument we could come within four degrees of measuring our affection for Hitler.

A big wild wish might be: "I wish I was under Niagara Falls." ★ There is no need however to go to such far lengths to keep cool and comfortable during the summer. JUST WONDERIN'

I wonder as the planets stare
Aghast at earth and earth's disorders,
If they just thank their lucky stars
That Nazis can't invade their borders
And as they march along through space,
Does sphere call out to neighboring sphere,
"Steer clear of that mad mud ball, friend,
We don't want its 'New Order' here."

I wonder if Alexander the Great, was gazing up at the starlit splendor of the Macedonian sky when he sighed for other worlds to conquer. One may imagine that he was. There they were. million upon million of shining orbs, moving silently and majestically above him, each one pursuing the orderly course ordained since time began and each one sublimely indifferent to his little conquests and his selfish vainglorious ambitions.

Did Alexander feel utterly purile and insignificant as he considered the stars in their course, or did he glare at them with red, apish eyes and curse aloud at his inability to subdue even the very least among them? Did he realize the futility of his victories and the instability of the structure he had reared upon a foundation of destruction. Did he yearn at length for the order, peace and harmony displayed in the heavens above him? Did he catch a prophetic vision of his own proud empire tottering to its fall and know that ignominious death was to be his recompense for a life of greed and strife?

There are many lessons which earth's war lords might learn while contemplating the orbs of night. Orion's sword, for instance, is for decorative purposes only. Ursa Major and Ursa Minor never invade each other's territory. The North Star keeps its ancient course, even the densely populated Milky Way is never disrupted by the wreck of war. Symbols of peace and order are the stars, steadfast through unnumbered ages, they constitute a reproach to the turmoil and instability of our life on earth.

Perhaps we had best defer our study of the stars above to some more favorable time and devote all of our energies to the task of keeping the blessed stars shining in our own American flag.

I wonder if Senator Hiram Johnson ever heard it said that. "comparisons are odious." Probably not, for when in a recent speech he compared our President to Hitler and Mussolini, he certainly uttered odiousness—plus. Perhaps a serious study of Plutarch's Lives and other books on the subject of Comparison is needed.

Uncle Silas says: "It's just too bad that great scientists and inventors can't devise some method of getting across to the moon. That cold, dead planet would be a mighty good retreat for ardent isolationists." —A. Merriam Conner.

CAMP FIRE PERMITS REQUIRED NOW IN TAHOE NATIONAL FOREST

Supervisor Guerdon Ellis of the Tahoe National Forest has declared that extreme hazards and danger of forest fires exist between June 16 and October 15.

Under authority vested in Supervisor Ellis by federal regulations and the regional forester the following instructions are to be in effect for this period and are issued for the benefit and guidance of all residents and visitors of the Tahoe National Forest.

CAMP FIRE PERMITS

Camp fire permits and a shovel and axe are required of all motor and pack train travelers camping in the Tahoe National Forest. These permits are free and are good for the entire season of 1941. They are required for all camp fires, including those in the open, trailer houses, and gasoline stoves. These camp fire permits do not authorize the burning of debris, trash, brush slash or grass. For such burning it is necessary to secure a burning permit from the district ranger in whose district the burning is to be done. The camp fire permits are invalid unless signed on the reverse side by the permittee and accompanied by a shovel and axe. The shovel must have an over all length of 36 inches with a blade 8 inches wide. The axe must have a length of 26 inches with a head of two pounds. Camp fire permits can be secured from forest officers, state game wardens, state fire wardens in the vicinity of the Tahoe National Forest, from offices of the California Automobile Association, California Highway Patrol office, and other designated agencies.

NO SMOKING

Smoking is prohibited over the entire forest except at camps, places of habitation, and specially posted "fag" areas. Smoking is also permitted on paved state highways. The throwing of any lighted tobacco, ashes, or any burning material or substance which may cause a fire, from a moving vehicle is a violation of California Penal Code, Section 384, subdivision 6.

NO FIRE WORKS

The entire Tahoe National Forest is closed to the discharge of fire works of all kinds. Supervisor Ellis states, "the purpose of the instructions outlined above is to remind users that utmost care must be taken in handling fires during the long dry summer season so characteristic of California. Every live spark left uncontrolled is a potentia forest fire and may result in a tragic holocaust. Drown every spark with water, then cover it with mineral soil. This is the simplest and most effective way to put out your camp fires. The past few years has seen a gradual decrease in the number of fires and burned acreage due to careless campers, fishermen and hunters. This has only been posible through the wholehearted cooperation of the many people using the Tahoe Forest as a summer recreation area. With continued cooperation from the public and strict observance of fire precautions, the yearly losses to this state of timber, property, recreational values, wild life, and even human lives will be reduced to a minimum.

Magnet For 4900 Ton Atom Smasher Nears Completion

BERKELEY, June 16.—The magnet for the University of California's giant 4900-ton cyclotron or atom-smasher, which will go into action sometime in the fall of 1943, is nearing completion.

All of the steel has been placed into the rectangular magnet with the exception of the top pole piece. A total of 3400 tons of steel has already been welded into place and the pole piece will weigh another 300 tons.

University engineers hope to break ground for the building which will house the big atom-smasher within the next two weeks. This 24 sided structure will stand 90 feet at the center and will be 160 feet in diameter.

The new cyclotron, which is expected to open new worlds to science will hurl atomic bulets with energies at least five times as great as 225 ton Berkeley atom-smasher, which is at present the world's largest.

"TRAILER VAGABOND"

Cody, Wyoming.

Most people think of Col. W. F. (Buffalo Bill)) Cody as a wi'd-west slayer of the sturdy beast he was named for and as an Indian fighter of the first water. Few realize that behind that great man's dash and show lay a mind that planned an empire—the building of the West.

His ability as a showman as proven by the tremendous appeal of his Wild West Show that toured this country and Europe, was also used to promote interest and fira imaginations for the development of his old stamping grounds into a rich cattle-raising country and agricultural garden spot.

Founded by Buffalo Bill in 1900, this town began as the center of the irrigation project he started. Subsequent development by the U. S. Reclamation Service added the Shoshone irrigation system and the dream of that early pioneer has materialized.

A hard and unkind country in his day it is a beautiful vacation land now, as well as a successful ranching and farming district. Instead of tracking down buffalo for an empty larder as they did in the old days, sportsmen flock here now to bag wild game. Instead of ranching that was always serious business decades ago, the present vast cattle industry is dotted with dude ranches offering the tenderfoot a try at a bronc and a few gulps of fresh, mile high air.

In Buffalo Bill's day the only things that flew around wore feathers, but now a modern airport at the edge of town receives regular visits from sleek airplanes.

The snow that covered the ground in long gone winters meant easily followed trails of food on the hoof, but now the snow means skiing and winter sports.

Cody was first built of logs, but the only remaining relic of the town's early history is the very interesting log cabin museum housing Buffalo Bill's medals and trappings. It s ands a few blocks from modern buildings that went up as a result of Bill's efforts to colonize the area.

But all this doesn't mean that the town has lost all its frontier flavor. It's still a Western town populated by 8,000 Westerners who nightly hold a noisy rodeo—not for the benefit of tourists, but just for the fun of it. Of course the Fourth of July's annual Cody Stampede is a big, rip-snorting rodeo and show that brings and entertains visitors by the thousands.

Although Buffalo Bill's remains are entombed on distant Lookout Mountain in Colorado, the town of Cody is ever conscious of its famous frontier-scout founder. It is lamentable tha his grave doesn't overlook the finished results of his tireless efforts. In fact, persistent rumors have it that early residents of Cody threatened to quietly tunnel into Lookout Mountain, steal Bill's casket and place it in Cody, where they figured it rightfully belonged. But the tomb was heavily reenforced with concrete to forestall any such plan.

However, even though the tomb remains distant from Cody, Buffalo Bill's memory is forever preserved in the name of this town he founded.

Local Baseball Team Loses Game To Auburn

Nevada City's baseball squad outhit Auburn yesterday but lost a 7 to 3 decision to the Placer team, the first setback of the year for the local nine

The loss by no means eliminated Nevada City from the Foothill League first half flag race. The locals tangle with Rocklin here next Sunday, at which time the championship will be decided.

Auburn made only three hits yesterday but one was a freak homerun with two men on base.

Ronald Joyal started on the mound for Nevada City. He issued only two hits in five innings but walks proved his downfall. Joyal was relieved by Bill Livesay.

Before the Auburn home run, Nevada City enjoyed a 3 to 0 lead. Ainsley Fouyer continued his hard hitting for the local squad, connecting for a long home run.
